

Introduction to Supervision and Team Leading

INTRODUCTION

Supervisors and Team Leaders play an important role in any organisation. They can greatly effect productivity and therefore the success of the organisation. The way Supervisors lead their teams will affect motivation and morale.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course, delegates will have:-

- A clear understanding of their role within the Organisation and team
- Reviewed methods of motivation and understand how to motivate others
- Practised communicating clearly within a group situation
- Reviewed methods of planning and prioritising within a team environment
- Practised dealing with difficult situations

COURSE DURATION: 1 Day Course

COURSE CONTENTS

The Supervisors Role

Identifying your strengths and areas for improvement against this role

What are your 5 key areas within your role

Motivation

What motivate you?

What motivates your team?

Methods of motivation

Motivation through delegation

Communication

What is communication?

How do we communicate?

Listening

Gathering information

Dealing with difficult situations

Communication in Groups

The importance of team communication

Managing communication in groups

Planning and Prioritising

Managing your own time in order to manage others

Prioritising your workload

Personal Development Action Plan

Throughout this course there will be a number of practical exercises carried out which will enable delegates to put into practice must of the theory covered

www.oaktree-training.co.uk

